Done this week

Project manager: Ivan (we may rotate later)

Taxonomy complete: 7 faithfulness types (FRANK) + 4 coverage types (APPLS), 2 examples each, 22 in total documentation/Taxonomy.md

Giuseppe	select_perfect.py picks the "perfect" summaries. Option A (all 3 annotators gave 7): 100 faithfulness, 66 coverage.
Malte	PredE, EntE, CircE, 2 examples each.
op380	CorefE, LinkE, OutE, GramE, German explanations and 1 example each.
Mick	Delete sentences, add out-of-domain, add in-domain, add definitions, 2 examples each.
Ivan	Merged everything into Taxonomy.md with the definitions from the papers, the second example for op380's 4 types, 8 more coverage examples, and all 30 examples with full summaries in examples.csv.

Questions for Neha

About our work

1 Is a summary "perfect" only if all 3 annotators gave 7? (A: 100/66, B: 167/131, C: 433/407)

2 Do we need severity levels? If yes, what's the scale? Right now each of us picks low/medium/high.

3 In-domain sentences: a real sentence from another article (as APPLS does), or an invented one? An invented one overlaps with OutE.

4 Are added definitions a coverage error in news summaries?

5 OutE: real-world facts that aren't in the article, or invented facts?

6 We weren't sure how to build the taxonomy, so we did it our way: paper definition, German explanation, 2 examples per type. Is this format fine?

- Could you share last semester's error-injection scripts?
